Mr. Beck, of Kentucky, has done good service in the House. As a member of the Committee on Reconstruction, he has been psinstaking in prohing that great iniquity, and instant in his seat in the hall in denunciation of every one of those accumulated schemes of fraud and violance that have been necessary to carry it through so far. Last of these Infamous measures came, as will be remembered, a bill, happily not passed into an act, to provide for the more speedy organization of the States of Virginia, Mississippi, and Tegrs, and the attempted regueries of this bill Mr. Beck very well exposed on the 24th uit, as we find his remarks reported in the Gobe.

Beginning with Virginia, he gives the The Democratic Candidate

I am satisfied the election was as fair and tree from utilinidation of the unifidence of fraud as Hawould be possible to secure under existing circumstances, and and that no undue it fluence was exercised at the polls. If intimidation was need at all twes beyond the power of the unifitary to reach it."

And yet, in despite of this plain and fair deleat, how, in the words of Mr. Beck, is it by this bill with the State of Mississipp?

"Hier Convention is to to reassemble to remove and appelat all officers of the provisional Governor they may appoint to remove and appelat all officers of the provisional Governor they may appoint to remove and appelat all officers of the provisional Governor they may appoint to remove and appelat all officers of the provisional Governor they may appoint to remove and appelat all officers of the provisional Governor they may appoint in a constabulary force of armed negrees, of course): to assertsin and determine the result of all elections, and especially the election determining the adoption or rejection of the proposed constitution; to pass any ordinances they please, even it these ordinances disfranchise every white man in the State, and all such ordinances shall be valid until dissiptoved by Congress."

This it will be seen that, having disfranchise 40 over the monty of the control of the proposed constitution; to pass any ordinances disfranchise every white man in the State, and all such ordinances shall be valid until dissiptoved by Congress."

This it will be seen that, having disfranchise 40 of the proposed constitution in the State antionity, first, to raise a loil militar, and, second, to remove and appoint registrars and judges of election, at J. so on at will. The prefext for these commons grown in the control of the

I call your attention io the report made by Gien. Grant when sent by President Johnston of the South to investigate the condriton of affairs there. He then stated that the people of the South had aubmitted to the terms imposed upon them by the Government, and that they were fitted to relim to the rights of clizes in the Union. Since that time he has seen proper to change his stituide onthis question. I do not impugn his molves, but we are all at liberty to look at the facts.
